

Class Notes from 9/6/16

1. Ideal friendship requires equal influence and power.
2. Full autonomy is required to avoid unequal influence and power.

—

C: Full autonomy is required for an ideal friendship.

1. Parents and adult children's relationship lacks equality.
2. True friendship requires equality.

—

C. Parents and adult children can't be true friends.

1. Parents and adult children's relationship lacks independence.
2. True friendship requires independence.

—

C. Parents and adult children can't be true friends.

1. Parents and adult children's relationship lacks equality and independence.
2. True friendship requires equality and independence.

—

C. Parents and adult children can't be true friends.

1. One can demonstrate certain aspects of moral character in one area of one's life — like close personal relationships — and not in others.
2. So long as you demonstrate certain aspect of moral character into close personal relationships, you can have close personal relationships.

—

C. People who do not demonstrate certain aspects of moral character can still have close personal relationships.